Season's Greetings

For the fourth year in a row, the Law Library is participating in the Salvation Army Adopt-a-Family Christmas Program. This service matches up needy families with individuals, companies, churches and service groups who wish to help those less fortunate. These adopted families exist on incomes below the poverty level with many being single parent households. More often than not, these families have a crisis that makes providing Christmas gifts for their families look impossible. The Salvation Army expects more than 8,000 families to apply for assistance this year.

This annual event is one that is looked forward to by all of the staff. Its lots of fun shopping for "our" family. As participants, we agree to provide each child with two new gifts, enough food for a week including gift certificates for perishable food and any other items the family put on their "wish" list. In the past all the items we collected were boxed up and delivered to a warehouse. This year due to lack of space, the Salvation Army has asked the participants to deliver directly to their families. We are looking forward to meeting our adopted family.

We would like to thank all the people who participated in the Maricopa County Bar Association's Domestic Violence Necessities Drive. The Law Library has participated in this event for the past three years and hopes we can count on all of you again next year.

HAPPY HOLIDAYS
TO ALL OF YOU!

Law Library Services

□ Horizon

The Library staff continues to implement Horizon, the new library management system. With the assistance of Judicial Information Services staff, the Library is now able to provide access to the Horizon catalog for judicial officers and Court staff over the Court's network. Watch for a memo from Marcus Reinkensmeyer explaining how to arrange for setting up your PC.

The Library has also implemented WebPAC, the World Wide Web accessible version of the public access catalog, making the catalog as well as other databases available over the Internet to anyone who has a web browser and Internet connection. Point your web browser to the Law Library's home page at <http://www.maricopa.gov/lawlibrary> and click on the WebPAC icon.

We have also received bar codes and bar code scanners, and staff has begun the tedious job of barcoding the collection. We anticipate this project will take some time. It is necessary for staff, with PCs, to work in the stacks, so your patience is greatly appreciated. Barcoding is a necessary step both for the catalog and for implementing the automated circulation system, which will also employ bar-coded library cards. Once the system is up and running, everyone's life should be easier. No more signing those little white cards - with the swipe of a wand, you'll be on your way.

Library staff has also begun implementing the acquisitions and serials control modules of the system, and continues to work on database cleanup as well.

There are also expanded links to state and federal courts and justice system organizations, as well as state and national bar associations and related organizations, state and federal government resources, and general legal resources and search engines.

New on the Library Publications web page are a legal research guide on Consumer Credit and Debt, and bibliographies on E-Mail Use Policies, Internet Access Policies, and Community Notification of Sex Offenders.

■ CLE Information

Half of the CLE year is over. Hopefully you have earned half of the necessary fifteen hours by now as well. If not, there are still plenty of seminars coming up. You can attend "A Funny Thing Happened on the Way to the Capitol: Tips, Trackings and Lobbyist Topics." Enroll for this January 8, 1998 program and you can earn 5.75 hours of CLE, including 3 hours of ethics. If you represent those who appear before administrative agencies, boards or commissions, this is the seminar for you. The State Bar sponsors this presentation along with the Arizona Chamber of Commerce, Arizona Department of Administration, Public Affairs Professionals of Arizona, Inc. and United for Arizona.

If you still need a lot of credit and deal with labor and employment issues, there will be a program on February 5th and 6th which offers 12 hours of credit including 1 hour of ethics. "How to Prepare an Effective Employee Handbook" is being held at the Hyatt Regency Phoenix which is located at 122 N. Second Street.

Superior Court Update

■ Filing Fee Changes

After December 31st it will become more expensive to file suit in Arizona courts. Legislation passed earlier this year increased filing fees in city, county and state courts. The legislature made the change to help improve the statewide computer automation efforts. In addition, the money will also go toward other programs such as domestic violence shelters, child abuse and prevention programs, drug and gang resource center and elected officials' retirement funds. These changes result from Chapter 79, Laws of 1997 (HB 2102), <http://www.azleg.state.az.us/legtext/43leg/1r/laws/0079.htm>.

On Wednesday, December 17, the Maricopa County Board of Supervisors approved an additional ten dollar increase to help maintain and improve the court's computer systems. This includes public access to court records as well. The ten dollar increase is applicable to Maricopa County only and will be assessed against the filings of original complaints and responses in civil, domestic, probate and tax cases.

As a result of both filing fee increases, the filing of a civil complaint will now cost $140.00 while the filing of a Petition for Dissolution of Marriage will cost $166.00.

■ Did You Know?

Find out how much you actually know about Arizona's legal history.

1) Although the issue of judicial recall impeded Arizona's entry into the union, it has been used only once; Pinal County voters recalled Judge Stephen H. Abbey on June 28, 1924. Among the charges, "presiding in court with a pistol."

2) Prescott's first judge was former steamboat captain John "Blinky" Howard, who held court at a boarding house called Fort Misery.

3) The original gallows at the infamous Tombstone Courthouse were burned for firewood in 1909.

4) The first ordinance passed in the newly incorporated City of Wickenburg prohibited women from wearing men's clothes and vice versa.

5) The cornerstone of the Yavapai County Courthouse laid in 1916 contains a sealed "time capsule" to be opened in 2016.

Electronic Resources

■ Database Review

When is the last time you clicked on to West's CD ROM? You may be surprised at what has been added. In addition to the Arizona Revised Statutes, you can either print or download the California statutes both current and historical. You will also find Bankruptcy Cases, Bankruptcy Digest, Bankruptcy Evidence Manual, as well as the Bankruptcy Annotated Code, Rules and Forms. Also added is the Manual for Complex Litigation and the Manual for Scientific Evidence. It might be worth taking another look at this electronic service.

West's Bankruptcy Library is the latest addition to the Law Library's CD-ROM collection. It provides an extensive amount of information on bankruptcy law and includes the following titles:

Bankruptcy Cases, 1979 to Present (Cases pertaining to Bankruptcy in West's Reporter System. Cases included are from the United States Supreme Court, United States Courts of Appeal, United States District Courts, United States Claims Courts, United States Bankruptcy Appellate Panels, and United States Bankruptcy Courts.)

Bankruptcy Annotated Code, Rules and Forms

(The text of West's Bankruptcy Code, Rules and Forms, 1997 Edition (including Revised Official Forms and Rules as amended to December 1, 1995); the Supplement to the 1995 Edition of Bankruptcy Code, Rules and Forms (including revised Official Bankruptcy Forms effective March 31, 1995 and revised Procedural Forms effective January 31, 1995).)

West's Bankruptcy Digest

(Corresponds to the printed version of West's Bankruptcy Digest, which covers cases originally published in West's Bankruptcy Reporter, as well as other titles in the National Reporter System.)

Bankruptcy Bibliography

(Bibliographic references to bankruptcy articles published in law reviews and other legal periodicals.)

Bankruptcy Evidence Manual by Barry Russell

(The full text of Bankruptcy Evidence Manual, 1997 Edition, by Judge Barry Russell.)

Norton Bankruptcy Law and Practice 2d
(Contains the full text of Norton Bankruptcy Law and Practice 2d.)

Just like the other West CDs, Bankruptcy Library uses West's Premise research software, which delivers user friendly, full text searching. Information can be printed, or downloaded to disk for later viewing on your home or office PC. If you have questions about using the CDs, the Law Library staff will be happy to help.

□ Internet Site Reviews

Great Books For Pre-Law, and Law Students, Job Seekers, and Full-Fledged Lawyers

<http://www.hits.net/~fpp/greatlawbooks.html>

This site provides a list of books "related to the law, broken down by approximate phase of the lawyer life-cycle." The list is broken down into fifteen parts and lists books related to each "cycle." It begins with, "Before You Go to Law School," followed in part by "Your're In," "Figuring Out How to Actually Be a Lawyer," "Legal Writing," "Starting Your Own Law Practice," and ends with "Thinking About Leaving the Law?" You can order any of the books on-line and have them delivered right to your office. This site also encourages you to submit your own suggestions.

An additional site by the same publisher, The Fine Print Press, is The Young Lawyers Jungle Book: A Survival Guide located at:

<http://www.hits.net/~fpp/YLJB.html>.

Here you'll find over one hundred sections ranging from law school, bar exams, legal research, dealing with partners and clients, dealing with other attorneys, and tips for surviving "the very real jungle of law practice."

Ethics of Online Law Directories For the 50 States and the District of Columbia

<http://prairielaw.com/cgi-local/ethics.cgi>

This database allows you to search for ethics rules applicable to lawyers' use of the Internet by state. The author of this site touches on the ABA Model Rules for advertising and goes on to explain that there are some states have specific requirements for advertisements that should be followed for lawyer Web sites and directories. A search in Arizona results in Ethics Opinion 97-04 and references to the Rules of Professional Conduct, Rules 7.1, 7.1(o), 7.2(e) and 7.4. The text of the search results are not online.

RAND Institute for Civil Justice

<http://www.rand.org/centers/icj/>

The Institute for Civil Justice (ICJ) is one of RAND's independent research programs. ICJ focuses on providing "objective, empirically based, analytic research" with the goal of making the civil justice system more efficient and equitable. ICJ's activities are supported primarily by grants from corporations, trade and professional associations, individuals, governments and private foundations.

This site provides overviews of the ICJ research agenda, and FAQ's related to the civil justice system, but the most useful elements of the site are its Online Documents, Summaries of Recent Studies, and subject index to ICJ publications. Online documents include, for example, Just, Speedy, and Inexpensive? An Evaluation of Judicial Case Management Under the Civil Justice Reform Act, while the Summaries section includes Research Briefs such as Punitive Damage Awards in Financial Injury Jury Verdicts and Trends in Civil Jury Verdicts: New Data from 15 Jurisdictions. The publications catalog lists titles by topical area (dispute resolution, economic effects of the litigation system, etc.), and is also searchable. Title entries include brief descriptive summaries of the research.

While open card catalogues combined with interlibrary borrowing make research easier than ever, library sites have other features that make them a useful alternative to the search engines like Yahoo. Many library sites contain large sets of research links to full texts, in essence creating a virtual research library reading room...As a result, many library sites are better jumping-off points for broad research than common search engines.

Adoption 2002

<http://www.acf.dhhs.gov/programs/cb/special/2002body.htm#intro>

On December 14, 1996, President Clinton issued an Executive Memorandum to the Department of Health and Human Services to promote their efforts to increase the number of children who are adopted and to move children more quickly from foster care to permanent homes. The central goal of the President's Executive Memorandum is to double the number of children adopted by the year 2002. Another purpose of the memorandum was to encourage all Americans to consider the "rewards and responsibilities of adoption."

Adoption 2002 is the response from the Department of Health and Human Services which will be a blueprint for all other federal agencies involved and will provide guidance to the States. The Department began by identifying the existing barriers which included delays throughout the judicial system. Among other things, the report outlines strategies to establish permanent placement of a child or children and proposes to "encourage more timely permanency planning and improved judicial decision-making for children in foster care." Also included are guidelines concerning decisions to terminate parental rights as well as guidelines for shortening the times before a child's first dispositional hearing.

It is hoped that the strategies outlined in Adoption 2002 will ensure that the President's plan that "no child should be trapped in limbo of foster care" becomes a reality.

Amendments to the Rules of Judicial Administration - Rule 2.090 - Electronic Transmission and Filing of Documents. No. 81,638, Supreme Court of Florida.
<http://www.flcourts.org/courts/supct/rules.htm>
l#judicial

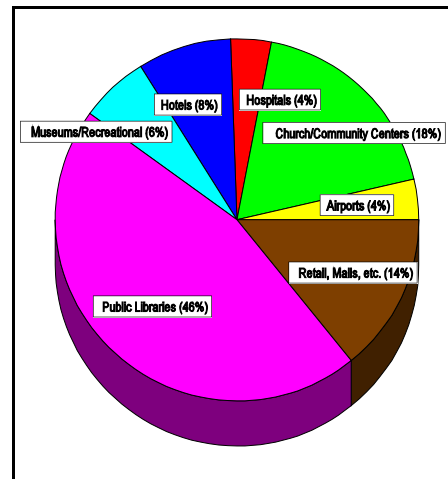

Two courts have made available recently promulgated or revised rules for electronic filing of court documents. The Eastern District of New York issued Administrative Order 97-12, setting procedures for electronic filing employing the Internet and the court's WWW site, which also makes available the court's Electronic Filing Procedures Users Manual and test database (at <http://www.nyed.uscourts.gov/>). The Order covers: actions subject to electronic filing procedures (EFP), consents to EFP, e-mail addresses of record, electronic filing procedures, signatures, service, copyright and proprietary rights, privacy, and more.

The Supreme Court of Florida has revised Rule 2.090, Rules of Judicial Administration, and related rules. The revision was intended to address public comments criticizing an earlier amendment to the rule as being so restrictive as to make electronic filing economically infeasible, in large part by providing for elimination of hard-copy backup filings. The document is available in Adobe Acrobat format or as a downloadable file.

Hillis, Bradley J. Internet Experiments in Electronic Court Filing (September 1997).

<http://www.wolfenet.com/~dhillis/efile/toc.htm>

This report, written by Brad Hillis, a legal analyst with Washington's Office of the Administrator for the Courts, summarizes the status of Internet-based court electronic filing projects, as well as the author's recommendations for electronic filing projects. Hillis covers the goals and methods of electronic filing, existing electronic filing projects, prototype systems and Internet experiments, digital signatures, and the relationship of legal publishing and public access to these Internet projects. The appendices include additional references, most with hyperlinks.

□ Letters From the Mediterranean

Well it is time for another update from Birzeit University in the West Bank area of the Occupied Territories in Israel. Life at the University has been rather interesting during the past two months. We have been through two strikes, one by the faculty and staff, and another by the students. The faculty were on strike because they were not getting paid, the students were on strike because the University wanted to raise fees. In the end, neither side won. The faculty has only been paid for one month, instead of two, and the University is going to raise the fees for the students. So no one is happy, but everyone is back to work.

However, one place at the University continued to function, even during the strike, and that was the Law Center. Birzeit University founded the Law Center in 1993 to help support the study of law in Palestine and to create a database called the Palestinian Legal Information System. Once completed, this database will provide users with access to legislation in force, agreements, judicial precedents, and other legal information as applicable to the Palestinian Territories. This database will be available online in Arabic and English formats.

The Law Center supports a Master's Degree program as well as several continuing education courses for local attorneys. The center publishes several legal research guides on Palestinian law. Many of these publications are available free of charge on the Center's web site. In addition, the Law Center is building a strong law library that will be able to support legal research needs throughout all of Palestine.

Although resources are limited in this area of the world, and the legal situation here is unclear at best, the Law Center at Birzeit University is making great strides to improve the quality of legal education and resources for the Palestinian people. If you are interested in the Center, please check out their web page at: <http://www.lawcenter.birzeit.edu>. It has recently undergone a major revision and we hope that it will continue to develop as a site for legal research.

Randolph, Mary. Dog Law: A Legal Guide for Dog Owners and Their Neighbors, 3rd ed. Nolo Press, 1997.

Do you own a dog? Do you live near dogs? Most everyone now-a-days can answer "yes" to either of those questions. So if you are one of the many millions, then you need this book.

How many times have you been awakened at night by a barking dog, either yours or the neighbor's? What can you do about it? Did you know that veterinarians must worry about malpractice as well? What should you do if your dog is injured by another dog? Mary Randolph answers all of these questions and more in her third edition of Dog Law. This book is a "must own" for anyone who owns a dog as well as for those that must deal with them. Ms. Randolph covers all aspects of dog ownership, both nationally and state-by-state. As with all other Nolo Press books, this book is well-written, easy to read and understand and very thorough.

Look for this book on the Plaza Level at KF 390.5 .D6 R36 1997.

McCarthy, Gregory A. Capital Cases Outline: Arizona Supreme Court. State Bar of Arizona, 1997.

The Death Penalty. Sounds ominous, doesn't it? Most people don't like to think about it, but it doesn't go away. So let's talk about the death penalty and it's history in Arizona.

Mr. McCarthy has done all the work for us on this topic. Described as "an organized collection of holdings pertaining to the death penalty," Mr. McCarthy has gone through every case in Arizona dealing with a capital sentence. He takes the reader through the phases of trial in seeking the death penalty; the jury selection, notification of intent to seek the death penalty, sentencing, appeal, etc. He pays particular attention to mitigating and aggravating circumstances and how the Arizona courts have dealt with them. "Thoroughness" is apparently Mr. McCarthy's middle name. This outline is as complete as anyone might hope to see it. He provides all the appropriate statutory references and case citations. At the back of the outline is a chronological list of reported cases with a description of the essential facts involved.

Look for this book soon on the new book shelf or in the Arizona collection at KFA 2965 .C2 M33 1997.

□ Article Reviews

Kirkendall, Hon. John N. "Setting Up a Family Court." 11 American Journal of Family Law 233 (Winter 1997).

Judge Kirkendall, presiding judge of the Washtenaw County (Michigan) Trial Court Family Division, discusses the planning elements and process for a new family court and facility. He gives an overview of the state legislation mandating family courts and the initial pilot projects implemented around the state. He describes the dispute resolution techniques to be employed (mandatory mediation education, rather than mandatory mediation per se), case management techniques for identifying and resolving oldest docketed cases and for establishing case resolution timelines (which would also provide benchmarks for judges to evaluate their performance), and the family court Benchbook and friend-of-the-court projects.

Judge Kirkendall then discusses his court's planning for electronic filing and electronic access, the impact these technologies will have on family court practice, and the problems that will have to be resolved, such as privacy and ensuring access to all. He concludes his article with a description of the planned family court facilities and onsite services.

Additional information on these Washtenaw County Trial Court projects is available on the court's web site: <http://www.co.washtenaw.mi.us/depts/courts/index.htm>.

□ Recent Court Decisions

Arizona Department of Public Safety, Arizona Department of Corrections, Maricopa County Adult Probation v. Superior Court, 1 CA-SA 97-0307, December 4, 1997

Not long after the revised sexual notification law became effective, it met its first challenge. Added to the statute, more popularly known as "Megan's Law," was a community notification committee which was given the task of adopting and monitoring guidelines for community notification.

This newly revised law was challenged by two convicted sex offenders who contended that the new law did not apply to them since their crimes were committed prior to the enactment of the law. They cited the Ex Post Facto Clause of both the U.S. and Arizona constitutions. The Honorable B. Michael Dann agreed with the offenders and extended his ruling "to others whose qualifying offenses were committed prior to June 1, 1996."

The Arizona Department of Public Safety, Department of Corrections and the Maricopa County Adult Probation Department sought review of the judge's decision. The Court of Appeals, in deciding to hear the special action, reasoned that the case presented a constitutional issue of "statewide importance" and one that may very well come up again.

In deciding that the law did in fact apply to the two convicted sex offenders, the court looked to the intent of the legislature. The court said "if the statute is punitive, then it may not be applied retroactively; if it is regulatory, retroactive application does not offend the Ex Post Facto Clauses." The court concluded that "the legislature furnished ample indication that it intended to protect communities, not punish offenders."

For additional materials on this topic, see the Library's Community Notification of Sex Offenders bibliography, available on our web page at:
